RESPONSE TO NUCLEAR PHYSICIST STANTON T. FRIEDMAN

In my next message is a short and curt bibliography of the MJ-12 saga as it evolved through the UFO press in the US as represented by IUR, JUST CAUSE, MUFON UFO JOURNAL, and UFO MAGAZINE (by no means do I claim that the list is all inclusive).

After being a subscriber to each of the above publications for many years and having had the opportunity to secure all of their back issues, my perception is that all four publications are genuinely dedicated to getting to the bottom of the UFO problem, no matter where the chips end up falling.

The listing is sorted by date of publication to show how MJ-12, the associated claims, and ensuing research was handled and viewed by Ufologists, but the MJ-12 saga had been circulating through the so-called UFO grapevine for many years before the first item listed. When the story first broke out publicly most had high hopes that MJ-12 was the long awaited "smoking-gun" for Ufology.

By 1990, those hopes had turned to the realization of most Ufologists that MJ-12 was nothing more than a "Wild Goose", as characterized in an editorial by that title by Jerome Clark in IUR. This in spite of valiant efforts by various Ufologists invoking FOIA searches, visiting archives, interviewing of experts and vigorous correspondence/research with various archives, libraries and agencies.

Notwithstanding were nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman's heroic and unprecedented personal efforts digging through the bowels of many, many, many archives, earning a finder's fee of $1000 from super-skeptic Phil Klass (Phil didn't know one pica from another), and uncovering, to an unsuspecting ufological community, that super-skeptic-astronomer, Director of the Harvard College Observatory and alleged MJ-12 staffer, Dr. Donald H. Menzel, knew Japanese; knew a fellow Massachusettsian and a Harvard Alumni, Senator John F. Kennedy, by his first name "Jack"; worked during WWII in the Navy as a cryptologist; continued to carry his association in that field as a consultant into what became the NSA; survived a loyalty hearing during the McCarthy era after fellow Massachusettsian, WWII buddy and alleged MJ-12 staffer, Dr. Vannevar Bush, vouched for him; and after "Jack" became President of the United States, hinted to "Jack" that he wouldn't mind an appointment, as well as later tried to stick it to alleged MJ-12 staffer and non-Massachusettsian, Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, in the political "buddy-buddy", Presidential appointments game.

To this day nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman, the original researcher of the Roswell case, holds the personal conviction that MJ-12 is real, but he has failed to convince most serious Ufologists of his personal belief system in spite of the fact that nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman has published numerous and numerous papers on MJ-12, all personally autographed and currently available directly from him; or in spite of nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman's 14 years in industry working for General Electric, Aerojet-General Nucleonics, General Motors, Westinghouse Astronuclear Laboratory, and TRW Systems on some classified projects. (and knowing one pica from another)

Response To Nuclear Physicist Stanton T. Friedman

That is simply outrageous! How can that be? All of the above is true and thoroughly documented by nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman, the original Roswell researcher, who has visited 15 archives in his quest, and who originally had the blessings and support of most of the Ufologists that are now extremely doubtful of MJ-12?

All true, but none of the above has any direct linkage to establishing that the MJ-12 documents are real.

First, data by its nature is perceived by us interpretatively and interpretations are subject to error. So, how do we know what we know? We know what we know by multiple, independent, link-by-link, verified chains of evidence. That chain has to be unbroken from the premise all the way through the evidence that purports to substantiate the premise. All the links have to tie together from one end of the chain to the other end. One link is broken or missing and the premise is not validated.

As an example, suppose Mrs. Menzel said that her husband used to utter in his sleep "MJ-12, MJ-12", over and over again, but she didn't know what it meant? Or a note in Menzel's handwriting scribbled to himself that said "must tell Jack about Bush/MJ-12" and found in his papers? Those would be direct links once authenticated through independent research to support that part of the chain that Menzel may have had something to do with MJ-12, but nothing such as that was found.

Also, since no agency has stepped forward and claimed the MJ-12 documents as their own, ownership has not been established. Ownership has also not been established at the front end. The source of the documents is anonymous. There is no genesis to the MJ-12 documents. The links are busted at both ends of the chain.

I know that Stanton Friedman understands the concept from his guest appearance on the Art Bell Show re-broadcast on Friday night, Aug. 2/3, 1996:

On Santilli-Autopsy film and the need for identification of the source documentation/evidence and ownership claim.

Stanton Friedman: "What I cannot do, Art, unfortunately, is tell you that this film was made by company XYZ, on January 39, 1992 at this studio. I don't have the genesis of it, but the  burden isn't on me to prove I said."

Art Bell: "No smoking film canisters yet!"

Stanton Friedman: "That is right. [giggle, giggle, giggle]"

No genesis, no provenance. Same as the MJ-12 documents, all of them, including the Cutler/Twining Memorandum. Even Stanton T. Friedman agrees that it was planted in the archives and did not belong there. It could have been anyone, an insider or an outsider. What seems to be clear is that it was planted there after the review process was completed. The Memo is an alleged NSC document. The reviewers would not have been able to arbitrarily declassify it. It would have been pulled out during the page-by-page review and sent to the NSC for their declassification review. The National Archives has no record of that ever having been done and neither does the NSC.

I know that Stanton Friedman understands the concept of security control and that the utmost of care and control would have taken place during the above declassification review of top-secret documents from the same guest appearance on the Art Bell Show re-broadcast on Friday night, Aug. 2/3, 1996.

Discussing the Santilli-Autopsy/Cameraman's claims of how he came to have the film:

Stanton Friedman: "That is not how classified stuff gets handle. They are not casual about it." *****

(From the above guest appearance, it is also clear that Stanton T. Friedman understands where the burden of proof lies from the first set of quotes earlier:)

Stanton Friedman: "I don't have the genesis of it, but the burden isn't on me to prove I said." *****

Just as it is not up to Stanton T. Friedman to prove the genesis of the Santilli Film, that burden falls on claimant Santilli, it is not up to anyone, but to the proponent that the MJ-12 documents are real to prove the genesis of those documents. After visiting fifteen archives, Stanton T. Friedman has not uncovered anything that establishes the genesis of the MJ-12 documents. And neither have the efforts of all other researchers that have attempted to find direct linkage to the claim that the MJ-12 documents are real.

In response to Stanton Friedman's last message to this mailing list:

- Ed made totally unsubstantiated charges that the MJ-12 documents are riddled with violations of Security protocol.. including not having a TS code number. This is absurd . There are many formerly TS documents without code numbers. I noted 2 in my "Final Report on Operation Majestic 12", though there are several others in it as well.

My apologies. Violations of security would only be an accurate expression if the MJ-12 documents were genuine. Stanton Friedman has yet to establish that to be so. But, Friedman's logic is simply amazing! Let's try to follow it in a slightly different context. Walker was a security breach. Oh! But wait one moment! There is Ames! Therefore, Walker is not a security breach? Sorry, that dog don't fly. Maybe nuclear physicist Stanton Friedman, who worked for 14 years handling secret classified documents, expects everyone to believe that control numbers on Top Secret documents were only used on Tuesdays, and every other Friday? No, I am sure that is not it. He is on record stating:

Stanton Friedman: "That is not how classified stuff gets handle. They are not casual about it." *****

We are expected to accept that MJ-12 was on the order of the Manhattan Project, or the H-Bomb. And we are expected to accept that the people involved were responsible, top-notch specialists in the highest of positions within the military and the National Security Council, some of which had careers in intelligence, concerned, knowledgeable executives with the best of the best in staff support, well aware that unauthorized disclosure could be expected to cause exceptionally grave damage to the national security. That gives us folks in the trenches a big clue. The higher the classification level, the higher the control. The higher the classification level, the higher the accountability. The rule is more control, not less. The rule is more accountability, not less. Never less.

Not only that, but with the introduction now of the alleged MJ-12 Field Manual we are expected to accept that MJ-12 was an ongoing project/operation with field troops involved out on the field packing saucer debris and aliens by the specs requiring the Manuals to go along with the field operations, exercises and training that expanded a minimum of seven years duration. And during all that time, MJ-12 documents were never brought under proper control? That means if one was lost, misplaced, destroyed, stolen, left at the site, or fallen off the back of the truck, a review or an audit would not discover the security breach! Or for that matter, if any compromise had ever occurred! Simply amazing! It would have been Friday night pinochle game at the barracks for everyone. After all, EBE was safely packed away and there was no accountability for the field manuals.

- I have also pointed to my list of more than 30 details in the documents that were not known to anybody on the outside before the documents were received.

Do any one of them establish the genesis of MJ-12, or provide a direct link which establishes the authenticity of MJ-12? Nope. If they did we wouldn't be having this dialogue. Your 13 points on Dr. Donald Menzel are irrelevant (see above). Same applies to all of the details you enumerated. None provide a direct link which establishes the authenticity of the MJ-12 documents or their genesis. Besides, the real question should not be "...before the documents were received", but "...after the rumors of MJ-12 were being whispered throughout the UFO community." That would be circa 1980, not after 1984. Until genesis/provenance is established for the MJ-12 documents, the important date is 1980, not 1984, and the possibility of a hoax perpetrated by an "outsider" is just as valid as the possibility of a hoax/disinformation by an "insider" with the window of opportunity starting when the rumors first started circulating.

- If the documents were frauds, they had to have been prepared by insiders not outsiders.

Not necessarily so. As you are so fond of saying: "Absence of evidence is not evidence of absence". Since the genesis/provenance of the MJ-12 documents has never been established, anyone with ample time to research an MJ-12 type scenario could have found out about the details and constructed a scenario around them. Not one detail provides a direct link to the authenticity of the MJ-12 documents or to the genesis of MJ-12. MJ-12 was floating around as rumor in the UFO grapevine for many years before Shandera received the rolls of anonymous film in his mailbox. Whoever felt motivated to, could have constructed MJ-12, whether it was an "insider" or "outsider", and had years to prepare and work bugs out of a working script.

- Considering the following papers, it is difficult to understand references to Just Caus, especially when noting that archival research is certainly not their strong point.

And neither is IUR's, MUFON JOURNAL's, or UFO Magazine's strong point. But, since your heroic and unprecedented archival research produced nothing that established the provenance of the MJ-12 documents or discovered any independent direct link to the authenticity of MJ-12, they have all turned away from MJ-12 in the hopes of more viable pursuits. They all seem to understand that the MJ-12 documents have no provenance, That is one of the strong points of the above publications. Even though nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman understands the concept, he ignores it when it comes to MJ-12.

- 1. "Final Report on Operation Majestic 12", 1990, 108 pages, $14. many documents, even a copy of Klass' check for $1000. for providing 10 documents in the large PICA type of the Cutler Twining memo. He set a limit of $1000. He hadn't been to the Ike Library..mail order research is costly and misleading.

Yes. But unfortunately, Phil Klass not knowing one pica from another, does not do anything to establish the provenance of MJ-12, nor does it do anything towards providing direct linkage to the authenticity of MJ-12.

- 2. "Crashed Saucers, Majestic 12 and the Debunkers," MUFON paper, July 1992, 21pgs. 48 Ref. $4.

Is this the paper that establishes the provenance of MJ-12? Or provides that chain of direct linkage documentation that supports the claim that MJ-12 is real? It didn't when you presented it at the MUFON Conference in 1992. Have you rewritten it since? Whatever you do, don't take out the part that says:

- "Literally millions, if not billions, of classified documents have been created. Very few not officially declassified have been released because of the very tight security procedures."

And when they have been leaked, such as the Pentagon Papers, provenance was quickly established. Not so with the alleged MJ-12 documents.

- 3. "Operation Majestic 12? YES!". August 1994, 37pgs.several documents. Detailed refutation of Kevin Randle's MJ-12 writings. $4.

Okay, you say it refutes Randle, but does it establish the provenance of the MJ-12 documents? Or provide that chain of direct linkage documentation that supports the claim that MJ-12 is real? Inquiring minds want to know.

- 4. "TOP SECRET/MAJIC" Hardcover July 1996, Marlowe and Co., 272p. Detailed review of the whole MJ-12 Controversy including debunkers such as Klass, Randle, Sagan, the USAF. $25. Autographed. Includes some never before published MJ-12 documents and has 10 pages of references. All items available from UFORI, POB 958, Houlton, ME 04730-0958. All Prices in US $ and include postage. Canadians can write UFORI at POB 3584, Fredericton, NB E3A 5J8

Okay, we already know about debunkers but does your new book establish the provenance of MJ-12? Does it provide the independent direct links to show that MJ-12 is real? Both American and Canadian inquiring minds want to know.

And why do you completely ignore in your "detailed review" the early history of the MJ-12 saga? Not one word of the Aquarius document and its connections to William Moore and Richard Doty. Not one word of the unsuccessful attempts to sell a fiction book based on MJ-12 by William Moore and a pseudonym co-writer, pseudo-initials of "RD", Richard Doty perhaps?, and Bob Pratt who was brought in to provide polished writing? Bob Pratt quickly washed his hands of the MJ-12 saga when they were publicly revealed to the UFO community in 1987 with the Aquarius documents in support of them. And not one word in your book about the CIA/MJ-5 Memo either? Whatever happened to that document that was initially presented as supportive of MJ-12? All were presented originally to the UFO community as all coming from the same sources. Your "detailed review" of the introduction to the MJ-12 documents to the UFO community in your new book has left out quite a lot and appears to be highly selective. Care to discuss why?

- I repeat, if Mr. Stewart has some reason for believing the MJ-12 documents are riddled with security protocol violations let him put them on the table along with just how he knows what protocol is.

Your question on how I know is totally not relevant and the reason is simple. My knowing or not knowing, either way, does not add any relevance as to whether or not the MJ-12 documents are real. Just like Klass not knowing his picas does not provide direct linkage to your claim that the documents are real. Your question is nothing but a distraction, a ruse, a debating tactic to throw the discussion onto a tangential course away from the real issue. What is relevant are the alleged documents themselves and whether or not they stand up on their own to the level required to create a chain of compelling evidence directly linked to each other, data point from data point, that supports your claim that they are real. That is your burden and one that you have yet to demonstrate to the ufological community after having visited 15 archives.

Having said that, security clearances that one may have held in the past are totally irrelevant to the establishment of authority on the subject. All that a security clearance means is that the individual passed a backgrounds check and nothing was found in the individual's past that would keep that individual from being granted the clearance. Background checks are more stringent the higher the clearance being granted.

Also, having been granted a security clearance says nothing to the effect that the individual ever was placed in a position that required actual access to classified documents. What it does mean is that someone earlier made the determination that the position could, during the course of business, have a need to access that level of classification. And who wants to wait six months at minimum for the clearance approval? So, the individual holding that desk/position/job had to have the required clearance before taking over the assignment in order to fulfill the requirements of the position. Nothing more and nothing less.

Access is based on a need to know basis and critically controlled. An individual reading a classified document would be breaking security if the document was discussed with the person sitting next to them, who could actually have a higher clearance, but not a need to know. In the world of ufology there are plenty of people out there who make it a point to taunt their audiences with personal revelations of any past clearances they may/may not have had. How often have we heard lines such as: "I held a Cosmic Top Secret and therefore I was granted access to this special vault where there was this book with an orange cover". It is a strict appeal to emotion and authority and it reaches only those that have never had a clearance in the first place, a sales pitch more designed to enthrall an audience than to establish credibility and also falling far short of establishing a direct link that such a thing ever occurred in the first place in the absence of independent verification.

Having said that, would you believe me if I told you I cruise the Web? Hmmm!

Would you believe me if I told you I read a lot? Hmmm!

Would you believe me if I told you I have a consultant friend who for many years held various duties in the military such as: Top Secret Control Officer, Top Secret Destruction Official, Security Manager, Classified Document Custodian, COMSEC Custodian, and also held a Critical Nuclear Weapons Position? Hmmm!

Would you believe me if I told you that this consultant friend has also visited just about as many different archives as you? Hmmm!

Would you believe me if I told you this consultant friend has discussed many of these same issues with you, but some that I have not brought up, last year at the Connecticut UFO Conference and that you admitted to him last year that yes, there are a lot of problems with the MJ-12 documents? Hmmm!

Would you believe me if I told you that it is in his expert opinion

(opinions are not decisive, but nuclear physicist Stanton Friedman seems to be impressed with people that have handled classified documents and have done heroic and unprecedented archival research) that "the MJ-12 documents are highly suspect and their validity is extremely doubtful and if genesis/provenance can't be established they should not be at the core of UFO research"? Hmmm!

Would you believe me if I told you I have handled classified documents as part of my past responsibilities both in the military and later in Civil Service within the infrastructure of the Department of Defense in two different Commands for over 14 years, and that part of that time included briefing flag officers, both on a scheduled basis and on demand, and represented the Command at interservice meetings held with and without the Air Staff on assigned projects, as well as preparing correspondence on assigned projects for flag officer signature to other Commands, the Air Staff, other Services, and various Agencies outside of DoD, including OMB? Hmmm!

What does that mean? Absolutely NOTHING in terms of establishing credibility or authority in relation to the MJ-12 available evidence. It may well get a college auditorium all excited, but it does not do anything to establish the validity of the evidence. The evidence has to stand on its own with all the data points linked to each other from one end of the chain of evidence to the other. What it does mean is that I am not exaggerating when I say that flag officer correspondence had to be PERFECT! No mistakes, no errors. PERFECT, on the basis of my personal experiences, but then again, I never had any experience with any correspondence or briefings involving "MJ-12", or any other sloppy alleged groups that have no genesis. Hmmm!

Well, if you answered yes to all of the above would-you-believe questions, you would be right on the money.

- My many weeks at archives have certainly shown that there are many variations in all aspects of marking and handling highly classified documents. I already knew that from my 14 years in industry 1956-1970 handling classified documents, but visits to Archives are very educational. Stan Friedman

My hopes are that someday a chain of evidence showing direct linkage from data element to data element and genesis/provenance will be established. For the last two decades since the first whispers of MJ-12, ufology appears mostly to have stood still, chasing one after the other alleged "revelations", all of which share a commonality with MJ-12: no genesis/provenance.

Response To Nuclear Physicist Stanton T. Friedman

I have but one question for Stanton Friedman. Is there anything in your new book that provides multiple, independent, link-by-link, verified and direct chains of evidence that establishes the genesis/provenance of the MJ-12 documents?

Ed Stewart
